

Institute for Multicultural Education and Diversity Training

This Institute will provide consultation, training, education, and organizational development services on issues of diversity and inclusion, broadly considered, across race; color; ethnicity; geographic origin; immigration status; language; Deafhood; socioeconomic class; employment status; sex; gender; gender identity and expression; family configuration; sexual orientation; religious, spiritual, faith-based, and secular belief; environmental concern (sustainability); physical, developmental, and psychological ability; Veteran's Status; age and generation; physical appearance; political affiliation; and, the exercise of rights secured by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

The Institute will build and disseminate cutting-edge professional development initiatives and related resources for UNLV faculty, staff, and students, as well as PK-16 faculty, staff, and students in the greater Las Vegas community that minimally focus: on multicultural curriculum development; multicultural curriculum development seminars and consultation services for faculty; multicultural education courses with foci on establishing teacher cultural competency and teacher TESOL competency; multicultural education teaching guides development; diversity speakers' bureaus; diversity training; diversity training guides development; multicultural organizational development services with foci on enhancing workplace climate and worklife quality.